

Insurance and Related Issues

Typical standard form agency CM agreements often require the agent CM to carry commercial general liability coverage (CGL) including contractual liability, broad form property damage and products and completed operations, and business automobile liability coverage. During the past decade umbrella policies have also been used to supplement liability coverage, although recent occurrences in the insurance and surety markets have dramatically changed underwriting practices and premium costs for umbrella coverage.